TIPPERARY BOOK IN FOR FINAL DATE

It will be Kilkenny v Tipperary for the second successive year in the GAA All-Ireland senior hurling final on Sunday, September 5.

Tipperary completed their recovery after a heavy Munster first round defeat by Cork in May when they beat Waterford by seven points in last Sunday's second All-Ireland semi-final. It's the first time they have reached the final in successive years since 1988-89.

Kilkenny are back in the final for a fifth successive year as they pursue the record-breaking fifth successive title, something that has never been previously achieved in either hurling or football.

It will be the 15th All-Ireland final meeting between the counties with Tipperary having won nine to Kilkenny's five of the previous fourteen.
