RÉAMHFHOCAL ÓN UACHTARÁN

In those homes where the earlier editions of this book reside you'll find it lovingly dog-eared and well-thumbed through; having done everything from settle arguments, checked facts, verified results and been a reminder of great games and great deeds.

It is an important part of the GAA library and I have no doubt that this updated edition will have a similar audience of avid admirers.

An Association such as the GAA should place a real importance on our history and our records and I commend DBA for their commitment to maintaining our history through this publication. I am conscious too, that in every county of Ireland there are GAA enthusiasts who in many cases have made a life-long commitment to maintaining the records and activities of our games in their area and it is important to salute their phenomenal dedication.

Behind every statistic and every result there are the volunteers and the players who have made the GAA what it is today and what we are duty bound to protect and nurture for future generations. I trust that you like me will enjoy getting lost in the maze of memories that are provoked by leafing through these pages and reliving so many golden moments.

TEACHTAIREACHT ÓN ARD STIÚRTHÓIR

The Association owes a debt of gratitude to a small army of enthusiasts who have ensured that the results and records of the GAA have been preserved over the last 137 years.

This particular updated volume draws on the inspirational work of the late GAA journalist Raymond Smith who together with his team of trusted assistants around the country updated this bible of records and who have done us a great service through their meticulous record keeping. Many of those people have passed on to their eternal reward but their work lives on here and I am also mindful of those many GAA members and supporters who still carry on this tradition today of mapping out the scores and feats of their county teams and clubs.

I would like to acknowledge Tadhg Cowhig and his staff at DBA Publications for their work at maintaining this production.

For an Association with such a rich history, this compilation of facts, statistics and figures is an important record which requires careful curating and preserving for future generations and is something we are deeply committed to.

Anyone with a passion and grá for Gaelic Games will find themselves flicking through the informative and packed pages, pages which are custodians of memories, reminders of great days and great players as much as they are a record of results and fixtures.

Rath Dé ar an obair.

The 1933 figures set up a new record the previous highest being an attendance of 43,839 at the 1929 final in which Kerry defeated Kildare. The 1947 Football final between Cavan and Kerry was played in the Polo Grounds New York.

The attendance of 73,588 at the Dublin-Kerry game in 1976 was the highest at a final since the capacity of Croke Park was reduced with the installation of the seats under the old Cusack Stand in 1966 (the previous best for the altered Croke Park was set in 1973 when 73,308 saw the Cork-Galway final).

Note: The first Cusack Stand was officially opened on August 21 1938 with 5,000 upperdeck seats. In 1996 seating for 9,000 was installed on the terraces underneath to form the lower deck. This reduced the capacity of Croke Park to 75,000. The first Hogan Stand (capacity 900) was opened in 1924 and replaced with the new structure which was officially opened on June 7 1959 with accommodation for 16,000. The first phase of the modernisation of the stadium began in October 1993 with the demolition of the Cusack Stand. It was replaced with a 26,000 seater structure the first in Irish sport to offer corporate boxes and premier seating; it was first in use on July 31 1994 for the Leinster football final and was officially opened on June 5 1996. Phase 2 of the redevelopment – a new stand at the Canal end of the ground – commenced in October 1998. This and the new Hogan Stand were officially opened in March 2003 and the redevelopment was completed in 2005 with the opening of the new Hill 16. This brings the capacity to 83,000.
