Interview Summary	All the contributors to this group interview have played a prominent role in the development of Gaelic games within Ulster Vocational Schools. Many have enjoyed a high profile careers as inter-county players and mentors, but the focus here remains on the work of the schools and their association with it. Together, they chart the expansion of the Vocational schools system in Northern Ireland and the impact this had not only on extending educational opportunities for pupils, but on the potential use of the system for the development of hurling and gaelic football. A key development was the amalgamation of the two bodies which governed Vocational schools GAA in Northern Ireland and the remaining three Ulster counties. Another was the emergence of an inter-county Vocational schools competition, in particular the success of counties such as Fermanagh and Tyrone in 1966 and 1967 and later, in the late 1970s and early 1980s, Derry. The Vocational school system expanded significantly over time and the role they played in counties such as Antrim, Donegal, Monaghan and Down is discussed. Alongside the impact that Gaelic games school had on individual lives and school status, the interviewees consider the influence of Vocational schools on the fortunes of McCrory Cup Colleges teams (which a number of ex Vocational school pupils visited), as well as those of various county minor and senior teams. The focus of much of the interview is on Gaelic football, although hurling receive a mention, in particular the geographical characteristics of the game in Ulster. The interview does not limit itself to matters historical; contemporary developments are also addressed. There is a discussion around various issues, including the future of the

	Vocational school system; competition from other sports; the attitudes of younger teachers; lack of comprehension or appreciation on the part of Croke park administration for the work of the Vocational schools; divergences in approach to Gaelic games between Vocational school north and south; the impact of Ulster bank sponsorship and other development on raising the profile of the Vocational schools game in Ulster. 00:00:05 Jimmy Smyth introduces the group, all members of the Ulster Vocational Schools since its foundation in the 1960s. Smyth reports on a talk he had with Sean Higgins, a founder member of the Ulster Vocational Schools, who started in Our Lady of Lourdes, Ballymoney in 1959. Mentions also other Vocational schools across Northern Ireland at the time. 00:02:34 Provides an account of the origins of the Ulster Vocational Schools and the reasons for its emergence. Mentions colleges receiving tickets for All-Ireland finals after Sean Higgins raised the matter with Croke Park. 00:03:45 Mentions that original body only encompassed the six counties of the north and that competitions were organised on an inter-county basis. Tells story of Harry Haughey taking a team to a game by train as an illustration of the 'sacrifices' that teachers were willing to make. 00:04:27 (Art McCrory) Refers to schools being new and that 'hurdles' had to be overcome. Discusses also the role of schools in extending education beyond primary level and the age of 14-15. Says first Vocational school opened in the early 1960s and, over time, extended across the north. 00:05:25 (Tony McCaffrey) Suggests the last school to open in Ulster was St. Aidan's Derrylin, in 1972. 00:05:46 (Jimmy Smyth) Refers to early schools in Armagh and the introduction of the 'techs'. Refers also to the extension, in the mid 1960s, of the Vocational School to all Ulster counties. 00:06:30 (Art McCrory) Discusses the amalgamation of the two bodies representing Vocational school in six counties and the rest of the country. Comments on the reluctance of Ulster Colleges to embrace the Vocational schools. Mention is made of Jack Mahon's role as secretary. 00:07:30 (XXXX) Role of Michael Markey, instrumental for running games in Co Monaghan, in contacting bodies in Northern Ireland.

	00:08:07 (Jimmy Smyth) Reads from history book outlining the decision to amalgamate Vocational schools north and south and the key individuals involved. 00:08:53 (Jimmy Smyth) Discusses the inter-county schools competition and the spread of success among Ulster counties. 00:09:35 (Art McCrory) Says Tyrone did not take part until 1966 or 1967. Refers also to the push to get techs involved in football and the reasons for the lack of representation of Vocational schools on county minor teams. 00:11:00 (General) Mention is made of Fermanagh's victory in 1966 and the involvement of players from Enniskillen Tech, including the team captain. Reference is also made other Enniskillen Tech members of that team - Seán Reilly, later a Sigerson winner with Queens, and Vincent Martin, subsequently Fermanagh GAA Treasurer. 00:11:44 (Art McCrory) Talks about plans for a reunion for the Vocational Schools winning Tyrone Vocational schools squad of 1967. 00:12:16 (XXXX) Mention is made of players from St. Patrick's Omagh on that squad. Reference is made to Gerry Taggart as the captain of the team, who later went on to play for Tyrone and Ulster. 00:13:13 (Jimmy Smyth) Smyth provides more details on the interviewees and their involvement with Vocational Schools Gaelic games. 00:14:18 (P J McGee and others) Refers to reading about Down schools teams in Ulster and All-Ireland competitions prior to the 1960s in Síle McNulty history of the Down GAA. Suggests it must have been the Techs involved. Leads to a discussion around participation of Down schools in GAA competitions before the Vocational Schools competitions were established. Discussion includes reference to ages and procedures for moving from primary to Vocational schools. 00:16:49 (Jimmy Smyth) Refers to the initial success of Ulster counties in Vocational schools inter-county competitions and to the three in a row success of Derry in 1979, 1980 and 1981. Considers the reasons for Derry's emergence in Vocational Schools competitions at this time. 00:17.13 (General) Discussion on the number of schools involved in the late 1960s and early 1970s. From 43 schools

	involved in 1966, the number rose to approximately 96. 00:18:00 (XXXX) Reference to the strength of the Vocational schools in Antrim – it is stated that the county was alone in winning Vocational schools titles in both football and hurling, the former coming in 1968, the latter in 1971. 00:18:55 (Jimmy Smyth) Talks about an ‘Our Games’ annual which included photographs of three Antrim schools teams: the Ranch, St. Mary’s and Antrim Vocational schools. 00:19:01 (Art McCrory) Comments on the outbreak of the Troubles and the ‘disintegration’ of extracurricular activities. 00:19:26 (General) Belfast-focus of Antrim schools and the strength of these teams, in particular St. Thomas’s on White Rock road, Belfast. Reference is also made to the prominence of St. Malachy’s. 00:20:18 (Jimmy Smyth) Comments on the dominance of Tyrone in inter-county schools, the number of Ulster and All-Ireland titles won; similar figures are given for Donegal and Monaghan. 00:20:35 (Hugo Clerkin) Comments on Monaghan winning of three Vocational All-Irelands since 2001 and considers reasons for the improvement in fortunes. 00:21:27 (Jimmy Smyth and Hugo Clerkin) Talks about the impact on county minor team of having a success county Vocational schools team. Mentions also the availability of greater choice in the southern education system. Refers to significant developments in the Monaghan schools system and its influence on the development of Gaelic football within the county. 00:23:15 (Art McCrory) Explains the differences between the colleges – which tend to be large schools with upwards on 2,000 pupils – and the vocational schools – which tend to have a smaller number of pupils, in the region of 200-300. Refers to complaints about large colleges not catering for many good club footballers and to the comparative benefits of the Vocational system. 00:25:05 (PJ McGee) Discusses the quality of coaching received in a school in Down Vocational school. 00:26:10 (XXXX) Example of Paddy Kerr’s Ballybay with approx 16 pupils in the senior cycle but got to Ulster final. 00:26:50 (Hugo Clerkin) Talks about the sporting

	teachers out from St. Mary's. 00:37:50 (Jimmy Smyth) Discusses the spread of St. Mary's teachers across Ulster. 00:38:30 (XXXX) Comments on the contribution of the Vocational schools to certain colleges in their McCrory Cup, including in Fermanagh who added players to St. Michael's college. 00:39:10 (Jimmy Smyth and Tony McCaffrey) Discussion about hurling in Ulster Vocational schools. Reference to its geographic spread: emphasis on Antrim, Down, Derry and Buncrana in Donegal. Says that amalgamation of schools in Antrim and the opting out of Belfast schools has damaged hurling in Antrim. Mentions the current dominance of Derry in Ulster Vocational schools hurling. 00:40:10 (General) Mention made that St Malachy's won first Ulster title in 1963 at Under 13 level. Reference also to the number of schools who competed. Reference also to Portaferry's (St. Columba's) participation in an All-Ireland final at Under 16 level, led by Sean McGourty. 00:41:13 (Jimmy Smyth) Comments on the different role taken by Ulster Vocational Schools in recent times and the part played by Art McCrory. 00:41:44 (Art McCrory) Talks about decision to make Ulster Vocational finals 'an occasion', moving to a bigger venue (Clones, casement or Enniskillen, Armagh) and support from Ulster Bank. 00:43:07(Jimmy Smyth and Tony McCaffrey) Sponsorship from Ulster Bank in 1997 and influence of Danny Murphy, Fonzy Corr from Cavan. Talks about initial meeting with Ulster bank and the apparent overlap between Ulster Bank branches and Vocational schools in the north. 00:44:21 Discuss the value of the sponsorship to Vocational Schools and how money has been used – bags, jackets, programmes etc. 00:46:10 (PJ McGee) Talks about his work as PRO in promoting Ulster Vocational Schools and, previously, publishing a fixtures booklet for colleges and schools in Down in the 1970s. Talks also about Ulster promotional initiatives in the late 1990s – posters in schools and bank branches; calendars. 00:47:45 (PJ Mc Gee and others) Tell story to illustrate

	changes in communications since 1996/97 – when he had the only mobile phone. 00:48:48 (Jimmy Smyth) Reference to seeing young players on the road with Vocational schools bags. 00:49:00 (Jimmy Smyth) Talks about the various venues where games were played. 00:49:22 (General) Discusses aims to identify suitable grounds – with stands – to host venues. 00:50:07 (Art McCrory) Explains the naming of the Markey cup – Michael Markey was ‘prime over’ behind pushing 6 county schools and 3 southern counties together. Markey died after two years in office. 00:51:13 McDevitt Cup – named after Eddie McDevitt, a teacher in Donegal, secretary of Donegal Vocational Schools Board. Different interviewees attest to his voluntary and financial assistance to Vocational schools football. 00:52:12 Arthur’s Cup for Under 16s – named after Gerry Arthur’s who transformed finances of Ulster Council. Stories are told of his influence on the Ulster Council, which it is claimed he put on a ‘viable’ footing. 00:53:15 (XXXX) Contribution of Jim McGuigan from Derry is discussed. Mention is made of his work in ensuring Derry teams were properly kitted out, to his contacts with O’Neill’s, to ensuring money from Ulster Council was forthcoming. 00:53:45 (Jimmy Smyth) Comments on changes in the Vocational Sector. 00:54:08 (General) Discussion around the future of Vocational Schools GAA and its link with the future of Vocational education in general. Mention is made that role in the 6 counties is changing, emphasis on more comprehensive education and local schools. 00:54:45 Concerns are expressed about school on the periphery – the threat of closure that hangs over two Fermanagh schools. 00:55:10 Jimmy Smyth mentions the demise of St. Thomas’s in Belfast, St. Peter’s, Gortnamona, Randallstown, Cushendall and other schools. 00:55:50 Reflections on both the waning of commitment among younger teachers and the quality of football being
